Changes noted in local little league program

There have been some major changes in the local little league football program for the coming season, according to Dan Herncall, league spokesman.

For the first time, the Youth Association will provide all equipment, except the helmet, to all boys who need it, free of charge.

In addition, changes have been made in the weight limits. An additional five pounds has been added to the maximum weight for boys age 9, 11 and 13.

Several new teams have been added to the league, according to Herncall. This should help reduce travel costs and time.

The Youth Association wants every boy who wants to play football to have the opportunity to do so. That is why the association is providing the equipment and will do anything possible to help young athletes and their parents with any problems.

For additional information on the local little league football program, call Dan Herncall at 352-2164.

State champs to play in World Series

Local team takes crown

The Appomattox County Dixie Youth Pre-Majors All Star team was set to board a chartered bus headed for Alabama today, to represent the state of Virginia in the Dixie Youth League World Series.

The local team won the state crown last week by virtue of a 2-0 victory against Madison Heights in the semi-final round of the state playoffs and a 2-0 win against Colonial Heights in the finals of the tournament.

Colonial Heights was the only team to defeat Appomattox in the double-elimination tournament, taking an 8-3 win last Tuesday night.

In the 2-0 semifinal win against Madison Heights Wednesday night, Paul Johnson went the distance, striking out five enroute to a 6-hit victory.

Johnson and Russel Walton had a hit each, and Mike Jackson got two hits, including an RBI double in the first inning.

Johnson had started the inning with a single, and advanced to second base on a wild pitch.

Jackson then stroked a long double which rolled under the fence deep in center field of the Amherst County High School baseball field, scoring Johnson.

In the second inning, R. L. Waldo scored when Mike Ferguson got in a rundown between first and second base in an attempt to steal second. That ended the scoring for the game.

In Thursday night's championship game, Appomattox was pitted against a hard-hitting Colonial Heights team, which had dealt the local team an 8-3 loss two night earlier.

But in this contest, it was all Appomattox, with Ricky Turner recording two hits, and Mike Jackson, R.L. Waldo, Mike Ferguson and Terry McCoy each getting one hit.

Appomattox got on the scoreboard in the first inning, when Turner singled, then stole second base. Mike Jackson then doubled, driving in Turner.

In the sixth inning, Russel Walton walked, then was driven in by an R. L. Waldo double.

Mike Jackson went 6 and a third innings, giving up three hits. Timmy Austin came in to relieve Jackson in the final inning with two men on and one out, and got the final two outs to record the win for Appomattox.

Defensive standout for the Appomattox all stars was Tony Mann, who had six put-outs in the game.

"Defense won the tournament for us in Madison Heights," noted coach Bob Hudson. "If our pitching and defense holds out in Alabama, we should do well down there."

The Appomattox team was slated to leave today (Thursday) and arrive in Mobile Ala. Friday morning. The first game is scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday against Alabama. If Appomattox wins, they will play again at 3:30 p.m. Saturday, and if the local team loses, they will play at 1 p.m. in the second round of the double-elimination tournament.

There are 11 teams in the series: two teams from Alabama, the host team, and the state championship team; and teams from Georgia, South Carolina, Texas, Louisiana, North Carolina, Mississippi, Florida, Tennessee, and Virginia.

The team from Lufkin Tex., won the Dixie Youth League World Series last year. Madison Heights hosted the series in 1982.

Coach Bob Hudson said he would call the results of each game back to the Times-Virginian, the Lynchburg News, and Channel 13 following each round of play.

Local firm sets production record

Virginia Fibre Corporation set a new production record during the month of June, producing an average of 634 tons of semi-chemical corrugating medium per day. The old record was 632 tons per day.

The new record results from a variety of factors, according to W.S. Slagle, manager of environmental and public affairs for Virginia Fibre.

"All the components of production jelled" during the month of June, according to Slagle. "The integral parts of the operation, including the woodyard, pulping, power generation and paper-making processes, all came together to maximize production of the corrugating medium."

Slagle noted that a minimum of "down time – when equipment is not operating due to maintenance work – as well as a "great deal of luck" helped the company set the new production record.

The Virginia Fibre product, which is used in the center portion of cardboard boxes, is produced from hardwood timber which is undesirable for use as saw timber, Slagle notes.

Virginia Fibre sells most of its product in the eastern portion of the United States, particularly in the urban northeast.

It is the largest independent producer of corrugating medium in the United States, and the sixth largest producer of the product among all companies in the nation, according to the American Paper Institute.

"The name of the game in our industry is to maximize the number of tons we can produce," Slagle says. "We are constantly looking for ways to speed up production and or bottlenecks in the production process."

New hours set for license office

The Division of Motor Vehicles license office in Appomattox County will have new office hours beginning Aug. 8, according to Nelwyn Morris, DMV license agent.

The license agency will be open from 9 a.m. to noon, and from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. The office is located on Court Street.

Bryant 'can sell a pot without a bottom'

"He can sell a pot without a bottom," said Vernon Bryant with a laugh as he spoke of his son, William Bryant III of Lynchburg who is adding one more thing to his list of endeavors.

Bryant, owner of Force Five Capital, a multiple investment firm and a chain of five video speciality stores in Lynchburg, Roanoke and Richmond, has taken on movie making ... the production end of it, but the fund raising necessary to get things going production wise. He is in the process of working to finance a major movie, tentatively called "Wilderness."

The production will get underway in January of next year with Michael Phillips, producer of "Sting" in charge of production. Directing the film will be John Frankenheimer, well known director of "The French Connection."

Although the location has not yet been determined, things are looking good for Lynchburg.

Frankenheimer was in Lynchburg last week looking around the Blackwater Creek area, and according to Bryant, "he liked what he saw and I think there's a strong possibility it will be shot in Lynchburg." It is Bryant's hope that Academy Award winner Richard Dreyfuss will play the male lead in the film.

Bryant, an Appomattox County native, and graduate of Appomattox County High School and Lynchburg College, believes that regional filmmaking will be the trend of the future.

"It is the financial centers who make the decisions about movie making. Movies get made by people who make the funds available," Bryant said in a telephone interview this week.

Bryant, known during his high school years as "Butch" is a former football player and hard worker. He doesn't mind tackling new projects, especially if he feels he can be successful at it.

I've been successful at raising money for real estate," said Bryant, "so I thought, why not take a stab at raising money for movie production, so I packed a bag and headed for the west coast.

"The market for movies is growing every day," added Bryant. "There are so many avenues demanding movies, in addition to the theater, there is network, the foreign market, syndication and many others."

It was a couple of low budget movies that first sent Bryant to Hollywood on a fund raising project. He was successful at it and decided to go into it on a larger scale."

Wilderness Partners was formed when Bryant and other investors from Washington and Texas, joined forces to finance the film. Bryant and his partners convinced Phillips they would have the adequate funding by Oct. 1 and Phillips in turn agreed to produce the film. To date $9 million has been raised for the $17 million project.

A bit of cooling breeze Monday morning ushered in August. July went out in a heat wave, but marked mainly by extended lack of rain. One rumor had it that fish were using suntan lotion. Proud that Appomattox has a good water supply. Normally, August is a favorite vacation month and time for ingatherings from gardens. One kind of vacation no one likes is brought on by lay-off from work or loss of job, and a lot of that is going on over much of the nation. We are on the verge of "back to school" preparations, and maybe that will help. Takes a lot of doing to get everyone ready for school opening. Not just the students. One way or another it is a community activity. Ah yes, and I noticed that Bragg Stadium appears ready for the return of football. To get into the spirit, over the week-end TV had a baseball game and a pre-season football game going at the same time on different channels. I watched the football game!

A neighbor, K.E. (Red) Coleman, had a clever gadget for catching Japanese beetles. Caught two quarts one afternoon and night. Got shed of 'em and captured another two quarts next day and night. It appears invasions of Japanese beetles come in cycles. Not many last year, but several years ago they had a convention in our area and did lot of damage. The gadget is called Japanese Beetle Trap and works on a special bait and looks like pipe tobacco but courser.
